

At the Hillsboro Community Center
Erin Hudson, Filmmaker
Thursday March 13, 6:00 P.M.

A documentary is being made right here in Hillsboro! Erin Hudson, an independent document filmmaker, is working on a film about the one and only Embree (Sonny) Hale, petroglyph photographer extraordinaire.

Join us at the Center to view Erin's previous films, discuss her current project, and celebrate with light refreshments.

Erin grew up in Albuquerque, went to college in Colorado Springs, worked in Denver for a few years, and then headed to California to go to film school.

A couple years ago, during her time in California, she read an article in the New Mexico Magazine about Embree

Hale and his photography. She became intrigued the moment she read the article, which mentioned Jan Haley, who had recently become good friends with her mom.

The moment Erin visited and met Embree, she knew she wanted to make a film about him, his photography, and our incredible town. She's thrilled to be here now working on the project.

Erin's goal is to spend as much time as she can in Hillsboro, getting to know Embree, his work, and all of us. She strives to respectfully capture what makes Hillsboro so special and looks forward to seeing you on March 13!
